DETAILED ACTION

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 112

The following is a quotation of the first paragraph of 35 U.S.C. 112:

The specification shall contain a written description of the invention, and of the manner and process of making and using it, in such full, clear, concise, and exact terms as to enable any person skilled in the art to which it pertains, or with which it is most nearly connected, to make and use the same and shall set forth the best mode contemplated by the inventor of carrying out his invention.

Claim 15 is rejected under 35 U.S.C. 112, first paragraph, as failing to comply with the written description requirement. The claim(s) contains subject matter which was not described in the specification in such a way as to reasonably convey to one skilled in the relevant art that the inventor(s), at the time the application was filed, had possession of the claimed invention.

Applicant has amended claim 15 to recite that the rod has a substantially square cross-section. However, this amended language constitutes new matter, since the specification does not disclose a square cross-section for the rod.

The following is a quotation of the second paragraph of 35 U.S.C. 112:

The specification shall conclude with one or more claims particularly pointing out and distinctly claiming the subject matter which the applicant regards as his invention.

Claim 14 is rejected under 35 U.S.C. 112, second paragraph, as being indefinite for failing to particularly point out and distinctly claim the subject matter which applicant regards as the invention.

The language “passed through the hole from said thread” is indefinite. It is unclear what is meant by this recitation, especially since the whole rod may be threaded.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

Claims 13-22 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Fannin (U.S. Patent No. 3,100,336) in view of Hultquist (U.S. Patent No. 4,502,317).

As shown in Figure 4, Fannin teaches a dent repair tool (i.e. a sheet member fixing device) consisting of a single, constant diameter rod 32, with one end of the rod including a hook 34 disposed at a right angle to the rod, and the other end of the rod including a rectangular ring-shaped handle 33. As depicted in Figure 5, the end of the hook is beveled at 37. In use, the hook is passed through an opening 29 in an auto body sheet member 28 (see Figure 1), and is then manipulated to pull out a dent therefrom.

Fannin fails to teach (1) the rod being threaded, and used in combination with a nut and washer to secure the rod to the sheet member, and (2) a rod having a substantially square cross section.

As shown in Figure 12, Hultquist teaches a dent pulling tool with a pivoting hook portion 131 and a pulling handle 50. In use, the hook portion is passed through an opening in an auto body sheet member 30/31, and the tool is then manipulated to pull out a dent in the sheet member, much like the process employed by Fannin. In Figure 13, Hultquist teaches a modification to the tool in which an outer portion thereof is threaded at 40a, and is used in conjunction with a nut 70 (clearly capable of being screwed down by hand) and a washer 72 to sandwich the auto body sheet member between the hook, washer, and nut. As disclosed by Hultquist in column 5 (lines 46-55), this embodiment securely anchors the tool to the auto body part, "which is very beneficial in auto body repair operations."

It would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art at the time the invention was made to provide threads on the rod of Fannin, and to use the threads in conjunction with a nut and washer, as taught by Hultquist, to securely anchor the pulling tool to the auto body sheet member as the dent is being pulled out.

The limitation for the rod to have a square cross section is deemed to have been an obvious matter of design choice, since applicant has not disclosed that the particular cross section of the rod serves any purpose or solves any stated problem, and it appears that the rod of Fannin, with its circular cross-section, would perform at least equally as well.

Response to Arguments

Applicant's arguments with respect to claims 13-22 have been considered but are moot in view of the new ground(s) of rejection.

Conclusion

Applicant's amendment necessitated the new ground(s) of rejection presented in this Office action. Accordingly, THIS ACTION IS MADE FINAL. See MPEP § 706.07(a). Applicant is reminded of the extension of time policy as set forth in 37 CFR 1.136(a).

A shortened statutory period for reply to this final action is set to expire THREE MONTHS from the mailing date of this action. In the event a first reply is filed within TWO

Art Unit: 3726

MONTHS of the mailing date of this final action and the advisory action is not mailed until after the end of the THREE-MONTH shortened statutory period, then the shortened statutory period will expire on the date the advisory action is mailed, and any extension fee pursuant to 37 CFR 1.136(a) will be calculated from the mailing date of the advisory action. In no event, however, will the statutory period for reply expire later than SIX MONTHS from the date of this final action.
